Special Cable Despatches fo THE SUN. LONDONDERRY, April 17 .- Sir Edward Carson and the other members of the Ulster Unionist Council have subscribed to a striking statement which, it is asserted, substantiates the persistent Union-

what are described as "actual facts" be-kinning with Secretary for War Seely's communications to Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Paget in the week of March 15-21. The vent to London and on his return he told he officers that by order of Secretary for War Seely the Government had decided on immediate active operations against Ulster and he had been instructed to offer the reluctant officers the alternative of reeigning. Gen. Paget also made other statements which are already known. Brig.-Gen. Gough immediately resigned and Brig.-Gen. Chetwode was nominated

Lieut.-Gen. Paget again met the officers that same afternoon and detailed the preparations which had been made, including movements to guard the depots, which have since become common knowldge. It was further explained that the Third Cavalry brigade (Gen. Gough's) was to seize and occupy the bridges and strategic points along the Boyne. The Fifth division of the army in Ireland, which was stationed at the Curragh and in Dublin, was to follow and hold these points permanently. The cavalry was then to move to other strategic points, and the Sixth division, stationed in the south of Ircland, was to replace the Fifth. Ten thousand men were to be brought from Aldershot and elsewhere in England, making the total operating force 25,000 men. It is further explained that the object was to blockade Ulster by land and sea. The Admiralty's movement of warships as already known, was detailed by Lieut. Gen. Paget, who added that it was not intended that the army should begin the fighting, but the police of Belfast would e ordered to seize the concealed arms depots belonging to the volunteers and take forcible possession of the old town all, which was the headquarters of the Ulster organization. This would inevitably lead to bloodshed, as the volunteers would attack the police and the troops and naval forces would then be sur

The Radical papers declare the story to be an impudent, scurrilous fable. They say that if Lieut.-Gen. Federal Expediting Court Hears Final Arguments in Pool Case.

SHERMAN LAW ATTACKED

Atlantic Lines' Counsel Says Anti-Trust Act Doesn't Apply on Ocean.

Final arguments were heard in the United States District Court yesterday in the Government suit to dissolve the transatlantic steerage traffic pool, composed of steamship lines united under the official title of the Atlantic Conference. arguments were made before Judges Lacombe, Cox, Ward and Rogers, who sat as an expediting court, designed to elimnate one step in the appeal that surely will be made in the case. An appeal from the decision of the expediting court would go direct to the United States Supreme Court instead of to the Circuit Court of

The defendants named in the Government's suit, which was filed on March 4, ment's suit, which was filed on March 4, 1911, are the Hamburg-American Line, the Holland-America Line, the North German Lloyd, the Allan, Anchor, White Star, Red Star, Cunard and Russian East Asiatic lines, the International Mercantile Marine Company, the International Navigation Company and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Railway Company.

The Government charges that the combination was formed in London on February 5, 1908, under the name of the Atlantic Conference, for the purpose of dividing equably among the affiliated steamship lines the passenger traffic between Europe and North America. Seventy-five per cent. of this traffic, involving $55,000.000 in revenue, is controlled by the conference, or transatlantic shipping pool, according to the Government.

"Fighting Steamers" Charged. Not all of the defendants named in the Government's suit were among the original participants in the conference. Some, the Government says, were forced to bethe Government says, were forced to become members through the rate cutting war which the conference is said to have carried on by means of its "fighting steamers." Two lines—the Russian Volunteer Fleet, plying between Libau, Russia, and this port, and the Uranium Steamship Company—were driven out of business through these tactics, according to the complaint. The Russian Line, it is alleged, held out until the "fighting steamers" cut too deeply into the steerage rates and then fell into line by joining the conand then fell into line by joining the con-

The "fighting steamers," it is alleged in the complaint, were vessels belonging to conference lines which were selected to carry passengers at rates which the competing lines could not meet. The sailing of these ships from the ports of the competing lines was widely advertised. According to the Government the money lost to any conference line through this cutting of prices was made up by the assessment of the other members of the conferences.

Fines were also imposed, it is alleged, on members of the conference who carried more than their allotment of the steerage traffic. After the competition from any one port was eliminated, the Government asserts, the prices would be raised higher than ever.

As an evidence of the competition stifling intent of the conference, United States Attorney Marshall rend to the court the following extract from a letter Secretary Peters of the conference:

The question at issue in the Swedish Parliamentary elections was the proposed increase in military and naval armaments to offset the danger of attack by Russia. The Liberals and Socialists, having a heavy majority in the last Parliament, refused to sanction the increase without a new election on that issue. King Gustav entered directly into the political fight, calling on the people to uphold the proposed increase. It was held that if the Liberals and Socialists returned to Farliament with a majority the result of the election would be taken as a vote of lack of confidence in the monarch, and that his abdication would follow.
